PREFACE.

THE "Souvenir of Massachusetts Legislators" is evidently one of those things that has come to stay. It has been so highly indorsed by the members, who are the best judges, that further indorsement is unnecessary. It would be as well to think of indorsing the old family Bible. This record of the lives of the men who make, and also unmake, the laws of our State, with the perfect representation of their personal appearance, makes a souvenir that is most satisfactory to those most vitally interested. The aim of the editor will be to make each record as complete and reliable as possible. He would express his appreciation of the cordial co-operation he has received in his work from the members themselves, by which he is enabled to present to them and to the public a gallery from which there is not a portrait missing. Every legislator serving the State, whether on Beacon Hill or in the halls of Congress, is here represented. The executive department is also complete; while the military family of the Governor lacks but a few, who would doubtless face a cannon, even though they would not the camera. The Legislature of 1894 was called upon to consider the gravest questions that have ever arisen in times of peace. Not only did it have to pass upon the most stupendous financial subjects, but also to judge of proposed systems to revolutionize our methods of transportation. A new phase of the temperance problem was also considered by it. As a natural result, it received criticism equal to the magnitude of the interests involved. Opposing interests condemned it. But the verdict of the people will undoubtedly be that the Legislature of 1894 did what it could in the cause of good government and the settling aright of the great questions that came before it. Long and patiently were these questions considered. Both sides were given ample hearing; and the final verdict was reached intelligently and honestly by men who appreciated the importance attaching to their decision, and that it was not a "snap" judgment that could be set aside the next day as easily as the weather-vane turns in the wind. It was as honest as its critics,—more intelligent than they, for it fully heard both sides; and its verdicts will be as generally approved by the people, whose servants they were and whose interests they sought to advance.

THE OLD STATE HOUSE.

Built in 1748, on site of burned town hall, at the head of State Street, Boston.

In the foreground occurred the Boston Massacre of March 5, 1770. Been used as State House, City Hall, and Post Office. British troops quartered here, 1768, and General Gage held council of war here before battle of Bunker Hill. Declaration of Independence read from balcony in view; from 1776 and Washington reviewed procession in 1783. Here State Constitution planned and ratified. William Lloyd Garrison took refuge here from mob, October, 1835, it being then used for City Hall.

FANEUIL HALL, DOCK SQUARE.

Built in 1763; dedicated March 14, and completed the same month; on the site of an earlier one, built in 1742, and burned on January 13, 1761. James Otis made the dedicatory address. Enlarged in 1805 to its present proportions. The grasshopper vane is an imitation of the pinnacle of the Royal Exchange in London, and was used on the first hall. The upper hall is the armory of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. Faneuil Hall is also known as "The Cradle of Liberty," because here are held by common consent the mass meetings in the interest of efforts to aid humanity.

OFFICERS OF THE SENATE.

THE OLD ELM, BOSTON COMMON.

The following inscriptions on the tablets adjoining the present young and thrifty elm briefly give the main facts of interest:

"THE OLD ELM destroyed by a gale Feb. 15, 1876. This elm planted A.D. 1876."

"THE OLD ELM.—This tree has been standing here for an unknown period. It is believed to have existed before the settlement of Boston, being fully grown in 1722; exhibited marks of old age in 1792, and was nearly destroyed by a storm in 1832. Protected by an enclosure in 1854 J. V. C. SMITH, Mayor."

OFFICERS OF THE HOUSE.

HON. G. V. L. MEYER, SPEAKER.

REV. D. W. WALDRON, CHAPLAIN

E. A. McLAUGHLIN, CLERK.

J. W. KIMBALL, ASSISTANT CLERK.

DORIC HALL.

This hall has seen varied gatherings, but none of greater interest than that of April 17, 1861. On that day, the first volunteer company of the whole country, during the late War of the Rebellion, assembled here, chose its officers, received overcoats from the government and in an hour and a half from the time of assembling was on its way to the front. The story, in more detail, is as follows: In Cambridge, in 1860, had been formed a company of "Wide Awakes" to help elect President Lincoln. Hon. J. M. S. Williams, congressman from that district, promised them that if they would keep up their organization they could go to Washington to see Lincoln inaugurated. But the United States government forbade the assembling of such bodies at the national capital. During the dark days of February, 1861, several of the company agreed to volunteer if they were needed, and, on the 14th of February, several of them signed an agreement to that effect. First on the list was the name of John Kinnear, now assistant door-keeper of the House. In the first week in March, he, with a few others, visited the State House and personally tendered their services to Governor Andrew. He advised them that there was no immediate need of their services and that they return to Cambridge, whence he would summon them if necessary. Then came the news of the breaking out of rebellion. They at once visited the State House, finding the Governor and Council in session. Governor Andrew told them to return to Cambridge and that they would receive orders in an hour. They returned and the orders speedily reached them. Then, again, they hastened to the State House, many of their members leaving their work and throwing their tools into the street. Reaching the State House, they assembled in Doric Hall, ninety-seven of them. In a small adjoining room they chose officers, electing James Prentice Richardson, now of Texas, as captain. They first went to the Old Colony station, but were soon ordered to the "S. R. Spaulding," where they embarked for Fortress Monroe. They were first assigned to the Fifth regiment, but were soon transferred to the Third, becoming Company C. This was, without doubt, the first volunteer company of the late war. It is a matter of history that this prompt, loyal and general response of this company, in contrast with the scattering returns from more pretentious organizations, did much to encourage the State authorities and "the great war Governor."

In this hall lay, in state, the body of Charles Sumner, Sunday, March 15, 1874, where it was viewed by a multitude as vast as time would allow.

In this hall gathered the "Army of the Unemployed," February 20, 1894, whence they were removed by detachments of the district and Boston police, but without violence. They had just been addressed on the Capitol steps by Governor Greenhalge.

This view is taken from the main entrance. In the distance are the cannon commemorative of the battles of Lexington and Concord, the battle flags of the Rebellion and, in the midst of all, the statue of Washington.

VIEW FROM THE CUPOLA TO THE SOUTH.

THE OLD SOUTH MEETING-HOUSE.

Built in 1739, on the lot of Gov. John Winthrop, corner of Milk and Washington streets, and dedicated in April of the same year. On November 27, 1773, here was held the meeting at which it was resolved that the English tea should not be landed; and on December 16 here was held the meeting, with 7,000 people attending, before the pouring of the tea into Boston harbor by the Sons of Liberty, disguised as Mohawk Indians. Here Warren spoke in March, 1775, three months before he was killed at the battle of Bunker Hill. In the siege of Boston it was used as a riding-school by the British. Its external appearance has not been changed for 150 years. No religious services have been held here since 1872. Now occupied by a loan collection of Revolutionary and other relics, the admission fees going to the preservation fund.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

BRIEF SKETCHES OF THE LIVES OF THE MEN WHO.

IN STATE AND NATIONAL GOVERNMENT,

HELPED SHAPE LEGISLATION IN 1894.

THE GOVERNOR.

HIS EXCELLENCY FREDERIC TAYLOR GREENHALGE, of Lowell, Republican, was born in Clitheroe, Eng., July 19, 1842. Came with his parents to Massachusetts when a child. Entering the public schools of Lowell, he graduated from the High School, taking the highest honors. Entering Harvard in 1859, he was awarded a "detur" there; was also chosen an editor of the old Harvard Magazine. In 1862 his father died, and Frederic was the only son of the seven children that survived him. He was then obliged to leave college, and taught school, worked in an iron foundry, and studied law. In October, 1863, he attempted to enlist, but could not pass the medical examination. In spite of this, he went to New Berne, N.C., hoping to get a commission in a colored regiment. He was assigned to the commissary department, and when the place was invested by the rebels, in 1864, was put in charge of the stores. In April, 1864, he was attacked with malarial fever, and was sent home. He studied law with Brown & Alger, Lowell, and was admitted to the bar in 1865. Private Secretary.—HENRY ANDREW THOMAS was born in South Weymouth, Mass., July 29, 1856; educated in its public schools, and graduated at the High School with honors at seventeen, when he entered the Boston post-office as a clerk under Gen. W. L. Burt. By hard work and careful attention to his duties he was advanced through the various stages until 1889, when he was appointed by Postmaster-General Wanamaker superintendent of mails at the Boston post-office, in which position he remained until September, 1893. In early part of 1889, he was offered the position of superintendent of foreign mails at Washington, but declined in order to keep up his old associations in Massachusetts. During the Harrison administration he was a prominent candidate for postmastership of Boston, and was the choice of the post-office department at Washington as well as of a number of Congressmen and the Republican members of the Massachusetts Legislature. During the State campaign of 1893 he was an earnest advocate of the candidacy of Hon. F. T. Greenhalge for the governorship, and took a very active part in the preliminary canvass and in the campaign afterwards, which resulted in the election of Gov. Greenhalge. The first act of the governor after his inauguration was the appointment of Mr. Thomas as his private secretary. He has proven himself admirably fitted for this position, and his courteous manner and great tact have won for him a multitude of friends all over the State. In the public affairs of his native town he has always taken an active part, and has been instrumental in the formation of different organizations of a literary and social character, and is at present a member of the school board of Weymouth. On Memorial Day and other public occasions his voice has often been heard upon the platform, and his services as a public speaker are always in demand.

Executive Clerk.—EDWARD F. HAMLIN, Republican, of Newton, was born in Plainfield, Mass., in 1844; removed to Northampton in 1857. September, 1862, enlisted as a private in Company I, Fifty-second Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteers; promoted to first sergeant; served in the Department of the Gulf, and mustered out by reason of expiration of service, Aug. 14, 1863. LEDYARD BILL, of Paxton, Republican, was born in Ledyard, Conn., May 14, 1836, and was educated in the public schools and academy. He then took Horace Greeley's advice to young men to "go West," and settled in Louisville, Ky., where he engaged in the publishing business, which business was destroyed by the breaking out of the Civil War. He then engaged in the publishing business in New York City, where he remained until removing to Paxton in 1874. His father, Gurdon Bill, served in the war of 1812, at the battle of Stonington, and was a member of the Legislature of Connecticut; and his grandfather, Joshua Bill, was wounded in the battle of Groton Heights, at Fort Griswold, Conn., in the Revolution, and was a Revolutionary pensioner. His ancestor and relative, Richard Bill, a merchant of Boston, was a member of the Governor's council in 1737-8-9-40-41. In 1891 Mr. Bill was a member of the House and House chairman of the committee on agriculture; influential in securing passage of the "anti-oleo" law, successfully opposed the increase of salaries of members, defended the rights of the farmers' boys on the game law question, opposed the granting of railroad passes to members (since become law), and was always favorable to sound legislation. Has given a soldiers' monument to his native town, and aided in founding the public library in his adopted town. Has always taken advanced position for State aid for public roads; and has, occasionally, for several years past, lectured on this subject. For the past dozen years has been chairman of selectmen, overseers of the poor, and of the school committee, and has acted as town treasurer. He is a corresponding member of the Historic Genealogical Society of Boston, and of the Wisconsin Historical Society. He has written several volumes of travel and history. His first work on Florida met with quite a large sale, and was largely instrumental in calling attention of the North to that State as a winter resort. The Literary Review pronounced it as one of the few successful publications of the year. Later on, a work on Minnesota followed; then a volume on genealogy; his last volume was in 1890, being the history of the town where he resides. In the winter of 1860-61, the first Union League Club in the country was organized at Louisville, Ky., by Mr. Bill and a few of his friends. This organization spread rapidly over a large portion of Kentucky and East Tennessee, and was largely instrumental in saving Kentucky to the Union. In 1893, he redeemed his senatorial district, which had been Democratic for four years. Chairman of committees on roads and bridges and engrossed bills; and on committee on agriculture, 1894.

A FEW CHANGES AND ADDITIONS.

To insure more complete accuracy, a few changes and additions should be noted to the foregoing data:—

Representative Rogerson is now town clerk and treasurer; is treasurer of board of trade and water supply district. Representative Whitney has served eleven years as town clerk of Bellingham. Representative Flint has been on Weymouth school committee last five years, edited "Lewin on Trusts," principal of Marblehead high school, 1876-80. Representative Clarke should be credited with a position on the committee on military affairs, and Representative Morse with a place on the committee on libraries.

THE LEGISLATURE AND THE COMMITTEES.

THE PERSONNEL, WORK, AND SPECIAL FEATURES OF EACH.

The Legislature of 1894 was more largely Republican than usual. In the Senate there were only 7 Democrats, while in the House there were but 56 of that party. The Council, as usual, contained 1 Democrat. The oldest senator was Hon. Sylvanus Smith, of Gloucester, 65; and the senior representative was Mr. Benjamin Day, of Marblehead, 72. The youngest senator was Hon. John F. Fitzgerald, of Boston, 31; and the youngest representative was Mr. F. W. Dallinger, of Cambridge, born Oct. 2, 1871.

There was no special change in the rules from those of 1893, and the amount of business brought in showed more than the usual per cent. of increase over that of previous years. The committee on the revision of corporation laws took up the work where it was left by the special recess committee, and prepared several bills, making improvements in the laws on the general subject of corporations, which were approved by the Legislature. The special committee on transit had many important hearings, and travelled to Chicago, Washington, and elsewhere in search of information. It finally reported the bill to incorporate the Boston Elevated Railroad Company, which was finally passed after various amendments had been adopted. The special committee on the unemployed is spoken of in another paragraph,—under "Notes of the Session." The House adopted an order for a recess committee to investigate the rumors that improper measures had been used in connection with certain measures; but there was disagreement between it and the Senate as to the form the order should finally take, and the matter was dropped.

In May, 1874, elected major of the corps, and in March, 1877, lieutenant-colonel. In 1881 appointed inspector of ordnance, with rank of colonel, by Gov. Long; and in January, 1883, appointed to his present position, with rank of brigadier-general, by Gov. Butler; advanced to rank of major-general by Gov. Robinson. He also holds the position of inspector-general, quartermaster-general, and paymaster-general. Under his direction the militia has attained a degree of efficiency acknowledged by all to be far superior to what had ever been known before.

Brig.-Gen. A. O. DAVIDSON was born in Genesee Falls, N.Y. In 1861, came to Massachusetts, and settled in Lowell. In 1863, enlisted in nine months' regiment, and served his term of enlistment. Was in woollen business a short time in Franklin, N.H.; at one time superintendent of Tremont Mills, Lowell. For twenty-seven years past, agent of Etna Mills at Watertown. He is also president of the Watertown Savings Bank, and of the Watertown Water Supply Company. Has position of commissary-general.

Brig.-Gen. EDGAR R. CHAMPLIN, judge advocate general, was born in Boston, but has lived the larger portion of his life in Cambridge; was graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1880, and admitted to the Suffolk bar the same year, and has since practised law in Boston; was a member of the Cambridge city government for several years, and was nominee for mayor of that city; had charge of the case for the petitioners of the Ward 17, Boston, ballot frauds in the case of Hutchinson & Alexander v. Hayes & Doyle in the present Legislature.

Col. DAVID W. FARQUHAR, aide-de-camp, of Newton, was born in Boston, Jan. 28, 1844; educated in Newton public schools and Phillips Exeter Academy of Exeter, N.H.; entered class of 1866, Harvard College. Has been in hardware business in Sacramento, Cal., and New York City; and is now in the roofing business in Boston, treasurer of the corporation of John Farquhar's Sons, Alderman of Newton, 1880-81. Delegate to Republican National Convention, and secretary of Massachusetts delegation to Chicago, 1888. Past most eminent high priest of Newton Royal Arch Chapter of Masons, and past noble grand of Newton Lodge of Odd Fellows.

Col. PETER H. CORR, of Taunton, was born thirty-two years ago, and was educated in public schools and at Manhattan College, N.Y. Has served three years in the Common Council and one year in the board of aldermen. Is largely interested in manufacturing. Has position of aide-de-camp.

Col. WILLIAM M. BUNTING, of Boston, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., March 24, 1855; educated in the public schools. Clerk in a broker's office in Philadelphia; in the fire-arms business in New York for many years; in 1882 appointed general agent of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company for Massachusetts; and in 1884 appointed general manager (Plympton & Bunting) of the New England department. Member of Algonquin, Art. Athletic, Country, Suffolk, and New England clubs, and the Beacon Society.

Col. EVERETT CHAMBERLIN BENTON was born at Guildhall, Vt., Sept. 25, 1862. He was educated in the common schools of his native State, and at Coldbrook and Lancaster Academies in New Hampshire. He served as deputy county clerk of Essex County, Vt., for four years, and as clerk to the Secretary of State for two sessions. He removed to Boston in 1882, and entered the office of John C. Paige, insurance, with whom he is now employed. Col. Benton's political work in Massachusetts began as a member of the Republican Town Committee of Belmont, which position he occupied for several years. He was elected to the Republican State Committee in 1891, and is now serving his third year as a member of that body. In 1892 he served as chairman of the committee on towns, and was elected chairman of the executive committee in 1893 and 1894. He was appointed aide-de-camp on the staff of His Excellency, Gov. Greenhalge, in January of the present year.

Col. GEORGE F. HALL, inspector-general of rifle practice (receiving his appointment from Gov. Greenhalge), was born in Charlestown, Mass., July 31, 1844, and comes from old New England blood, his ancestors taking part in the Colonial and Revolutionary Wars. He is a direct descendant of Capt. Joseph Syll, who was called into military life early in King Philip's War, and served almost continuously in important times and places until its close: is of the same stock as the two Colonial governors.—Jonathan Belcher, governor of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and New Jersey, and Thomas Danforth, who was president of Maine, and lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts. Also a descendant from Rev. John Hancock, whose famous grandson's signature—Gov. John Hancock's—stands boldly out on the immortal Declaration of Independence. It is almost unnecessary to say that Col. Hall responded to the call to arms in the Civil War as one of the Forty-fourth Massachusetts Volunteers, and has passed through all the offices, and is past commander of Edward W. Kinsley Post 113, G. A. R. Served five years as inspector of rifle practice of First Regiment, M. V. M., until promoted. Belongs to several social clubs. Is an active member of Lodge of Eleusis, and a Knight Templar, St. Bernard's Commandery; a member of the "Sons of the Revolution," and life member of the "Society of Colonial Wars."

Col. JAMES LOWELL CARTER, of Brookline, was born in Cambridge, Jan. 21, 1848; educated in numerous private and public schools and United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. Was an officer in the army, rank first lieutenant, from 1864 to 1866, in One Hundred and Fourth Regiment, U. S. C. T. Since leaving the navy, has been civil and mechanical engineer on railroads in Iowa and other sections of the West, and is now Transfer Agent of the C., B. & Q. R.R. Company. Was on staff of Gov. Russell, 1892 and 1893, with rank of colonel and assistant inspector-general.

Col. PERCY PARKER, of Lowell, was born in Dracut, March 4, 1857; educated in public schools, and West Point military academy, in the class of 1879. Is a paper manufacturer of the firm of Parker & Bassett; treasurer of the Lowell

& Suburban Street Railway Company; treasurer of the American Bolt Company; trustee of the City Institute for Savings; director of the Old Lowell National Bank; assistant quartermaster-general on Gov. Russell's staff; and assistant inspector-general on the present staff; was second lieutenant of the Eighth United States Infantry from June, 1879, to July, 1882, with service in Nevada, California, and Arizona.

Col. FREDERICK G. KING, of Boston, was born in Port Richmond, N.Y., Aug. 16, 1856; educated in public schools. Entered employ of The Barbour Brothers, linen thread manufacturers, in April, 1871, with whom he has remained ever since, at present being the manager of their New England business. Enlisted in Company C, Fourth Battery, M. V. M., March 19, 1877; appointed corporal, Dec. 27, 1877; sergeant of Company C, First Regiment, June 16, 1879; second lieutenant, Dec. 22, 1879; adjutant, April 28, 1881; major, Dec. 28, 1885; resigned and discharged, Jan. 15, 1891. Appointed assistant inspector-general, with rank of colonel on staff of Gov. Russell, Jan., 13, 1892, and held that position until reappointed by Gov. Greenhalge in January, 1894, to date from original appointment. Has never held public office, but was selected as chief marshal of the great Republican demonstration in Boston in November in the presidential campaign of 1888, when Gen. Harrison was elected President. Is a Mason. Col. King's home is in the Reservoir district of Boston.

Col. CYRUS A. PAGE, assistant adjutant-general, of Boston, was born in Bedford, June 9, 1847; educated in Boston public schools. Editor and publisher of the Boston Beacon, which he "invented, started, and developed," and which has been from the start a gratifying financial success. In Boston Common Council, 1872-73-74-75, and on board of directors for Boston's public institutions, 1873-75.

Col. JAMES A. LAKIN, assistant adjutant-general, of Westfield, was born in Boston, Feb. 7, 1841; educated in its public schools. Enlisted in the First Massachusetts Regiment, 1861; and was on the staff of Gen. R. A. Alger; member and commander of Lyon Post, G. A. R.; manager of the Masons' Fraternal Accident Association of America; president of National Masonic Aid Association of Westfield; president of American Casket Hardware Company; and senior partner of J. A. Lakin & Co., standard manufacturers. In the House of 1891-92; on committees on insurance and railroads, respectively.

Col. BENJAMIN S. LOVELL, assistant adjutant-general, was born in Weymouth, July 10, 1844; educated in Weymouth public schools. Member and treasurer of the John P. Lovell Arms Company. Enlisted at the age of seventeen in Company A, Forty-second regiment, serving under Gens. Butler and Banks in the department of the Gulf; discharged, spring of 1865. Member of Reynolds Post, G. A. R., and its commander for fifteen consecutive years. Junior vice-commander in 1880, senior vice-commander in 1881, and refused nomination as department commander in 1882. Aide-de-camp of Gen. John C. Robinson, national commander-in-chief, 1877-78; on staff of Gen. Russell A. Alger in 1889, and of Gen. Palmer in 1892. On staff of Gov. Long in 1880-81-82, with rank of colonel. Delegate to Republican National Convention, 1880-84-88-92; member of House of Representatives, 1877-78-86-87, and of Senate, 1884. In House he served on committees on mercantile affairs, railroads, and special committee on redistricting the State; in Senate on harbors and public lands, military affairs, and Hoosac Tunnel and Troy and Greenfield Railroad. Prominent in Masonic and Odd Fellows, member of Orphan's Hope Lodge of the former, and of Crescent Lodge of the latter.

Col. AUGUST H. GOETTING was born and educated in the State of New York, and was prominent in its politics, being a member of the State delegation to the National Republican Convention of 1880. Removed to Springfield in 1883; secretary of the Republican City Committee in 1885; chosen member of the Republican State Committee in 1889, and chairman of its executive committee in 1892; is chairman of the second Republican Congressional Committee, and eighth Republican Councillor Committee; member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company; and served on Gov. Brackett's staff in 1891. Col. Goetting is a manufacturer.

Col. FRANK S. RICHARDSON, assistant quartermaster-general, was born in North Adams, where he now resides, Oct. 18, 1856; educated in its public schools, graduating from Drury High School in 1875. Since 1878, has been treasurer and manager of North Adams Gas Light Company. Clerk and treasurer of fire district from 1883 to 1891. Treasurer of United Zylonite Company from 1887 until its sale, in 1891. Enlisted in militia in 1878, and served four years, holding commissions as second and first lieutenant, and was captain when he resigned, in 1882.

Col. HENRY HASTINGS, of Boston, was born in West Medford, Dec. 31, 1857; educated in Boston public schools, and fitted for Harvard College. Is a ship-owner, successor to his father, Henry Hastings; also dealer in foreign iron and steel. Assistant adjutant-general on the staff of Gov. Butler. Is now assistant quartermaster-general on the staff of Gov. Greenhalge. President for six years of the "Commodore Club."

Col. WILLIAM BARRETT, of Concord, was born and educated in that town, and is now engaged there in the insurance business, representing the Middlesex Insurance Company.

Col. GEORGE B. BILLINGS, of Boston, was born in Boston, Feb. 9, 1864; educated in Boston public schools. In boot and shoe business. Secretary of Boston Base-ball Association; chairman of Ward Eleven Republican Committee; secretary of the Middlesex Club. Member of Home Market and Republican clubs; also member of Boston Athletic Association, and one of the "Sons of Revolution."

Col. FREDERICK I. WALSH, of Lowell, was born in Pawtucket, R.I., when it was still a part of Massachusetts, so he claims to be a Massachusetts boy; educated in the public schools of Lawrence, Providence, R.I., Santa Cruz, Cal., and Lowell, graduating with good rank from the Lowell High School in 1876, after a three years' course. After a special course in chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, entered the Hamilton Print Works of Lowell, of which his father, Thomas Walsh, is superintendent. After a year here, entered employ of Henry D. Dupee, as chemist at his chemical and color works at Walpole. After four years there, returned to Hamilton Print Works, where he is now assistant superintendent. Member of school board, 1892-93, being chairman of committee on military instruction. Has been director in Vesper Boat Club, senior warden and york of Masons.

NOTES OF THE SESSION.

There was an unusual number of deaths in the membership of the House of 1894. First, Benjamin J. Sullivan, who had also been a member of the House in 1892-93, died in December. Then, January 21, Alfred A. Woodbury, of Charlton, died. Messrs. Joslin, Bacon, Delvey, Bridges, and Tuite were appointed a committee to attend the funeral and prepare appropriate resolutions. On February 1, Robert C. Brown, of Taunton, who was also a member of the House in 1893, died. Messrs. Alden, Malone, Kneil, James Stuart Murphy, C. G. Bancroft, and James E. Hayes were appointed a committee to represent the House at his funeral. John L. Murphy, of Boston, died February 14; and this committee was appointed to attend the funeral and prepare resolutions: Messrs. Rosnosky, McCarthy, O'Brien, Richard J. Hayes, William J. Donovan, Quinn, and Graham. On March 8, Noah Hammond, of Mattapoisett, died; and Messrs. Eddy, Alden, Rugg, Gillingham, Soule, Tompkins, and Ross were appointed to attend the funeral. Then on Wednesday, May 2, Mr. Tompkins expired as he stepped from the elevator to attend the afternoon session. Messrs. Rugg, Eddy, Ross, Leach, O. Foss, Gillingham, and Sturtevant were appointed a committee to attend the funeral and prepare suitable resolutions. On June 24, Mr. Smalley, of Nantucket, who had been ill nearly from the first of the session, died; and Messrs. Shute, Dennis, Hoar, White, and O. Foss were appointed to attend his funeral and draft appropriate resolutions. Besides these deaths, Mr. Burges was detained from his place for a great part of the session by serious illness; while about the first of June Mr. Ferguson was thrown from his carriage, and had his left arm broken in the elbow.

The House began forenoon sessions on Wednesday, April 4.

A remarkable yea and nay was that on rejecting the bill to establish boards of police for cities.—141 to 1, the solitary nay being that of Mr. Russell.

This joint committee was appointed to represent the General Court on the occasion of the dedication of the statue of Col. Robert G. Shaw on Boston Common: Senators Sawyer, Coughlin, and Monk and Representatives Teamoh, Lovett, Duddy, Giddings, Knox, Kinnaly, C. L. Hammond, Bridges, and Adams.

An unusual pair was one in the House,—Bliss with Joy.

The first filibustering in the House was on Tuesday, April 17, when the Democrats successfully resisted the attempt of the Republicans to put on its immediate passage the bill for a board of police for Fall River. By unanimous agreement finally the bill was assigned for the next afternoon.

On January 23, the death of ex-Gov. William Gaston was announced in the House. Mr. Mellen, of Worcester, offered appropriate resolutions, which were adopted after remarks by Messrs. Mellen, Wellman, Richard Sullivan, and Myers.

Admiral Hopkins of the British war-ship "Blake" made an official call on Gov. Greenhalge, May 23, at 3.30 P.M. The next day the governor and members of his staff returned the call. The admiral also entertained the governor and other State officials at a banquet on the "Blake," and the governor returned the compliment by a banquet at the Parker House.

The House calendar on April 30 and May 1 was probably the largest ever seen, comprising 35 pages. It was also an unusual, if not unprecedented, fact that, after the House fairly got the business into the calendar, it was never wholly finished any day before adjournment until almost the extreme end of the session.

A memorable resolve was that to determine and mark the spot of the site of the first town meeting held in America and of the first free school supported by general taxation, both of which are supposed to have been in the Dorchester district of Boston.

A notable trip by a committee was that of the military committee, with the commission appointed by the governor, to ascertain and mark the positions occupied by Massachusetts troops in the battle of Antietam, in order that such positions might be suitably marked with tablets or monuments. The committee recommended that all marks should be of uniform design and expense.

Both branches adopted resolutions, introduced in the Senate by Senator Blanchard, expressing the profound sorrow of the State at the death of Louis Kossuth, the Hungarian hero and patriot, who, while the guest of the State in 1852, enlisted the admiration of our people for his devotion to the struggle of Hungary for independence." He was then given a reception in the Senate chamber, Hon. Henry Wilson being president of that body, while Gen. Nathaniel P. Banks was speaker of the House. This was in April.

On Tuesday, April 10, the Republicans made a party organization by choice of Mr. E. S. Bradford, of Springfield, as chairman and Mr. J. A. Bailey, Jr., of Arlington, as secretary. This caucus committee was appointed, the chairman and secretary being members ex officio: Messrs. Darling, Galloupe, W. H. I. Hayes, C. G. Bancroft, and Wellman. Messrs. McCarthy, Dennis, Russell, J. B. Newhall, F. C. Wood, Simpson, and J. S. Murphy were appointed a committee to arrange for a dinner of the Republican members of the Legislature and invited guests. Subsequently, as arranged by this committee, the Republican members had a banquet at the Parker House, May 1. President Putler presided, with Gov. Greenhalge at his right and Lieut.-Gov. Wolcott at his left, while Chairman Winslow and Secretary Kent of the Republican State Committee were also present. Senators Hoar and Lodge sent letters of regret. Speeches were made by Messrs. Greenhalge, Wolcott, Winslow, Butler, Speaker Meyer of the House, Senators Kittredge, Lawrence, and Salisbury, and Representatives Wellman, Myers, W. H. I. Hayes, and McCarthy.

Early in the session the Democrats made choice of Mr. James E. Hayes, of Boston, as caucus chairman and Mr. W. A. Lenihan as caucus secretary. The position of chairman is that of leader of the party on the floor of the House and whenever the party wishes to act as a unit. The position is the most important of all from a political standpoint. In selecting Mr. Hayes to fill this place, his party acted wisely. His experience of a year on the floor, his familiarity with methods of parliamentary practice, and the respect in which he was held by his political opponents as well as by his fellow-Democrats, combined to qualify him admirably for the position. His lead on party questions gained for his party all the advantages possible, and the rights of the minority were fully secured.

The debate on bill of the Boston Elevated Railroad Company was probably of unequalled length, as it consumed the greater part of eleven days in the Senate and half as much in the House.

On the 28th of June, both branches were visited by Gov. Hogg, of Texas, who was accompanied by representative business and professional gentlemen from that State. Gov. Hogg made a brief address to each branch, and was presented to the members of the Senate by the president.

On June 20, the House had its shortest calendar up to that date, but had so many reconsiderations and similar business before it that it did not reach its calendar all day.

Mr. Morrill, of Waltham, was appointed monitor of the sixth division vide Mr. Brown, of Taunton, deceased.

The officers of the Senate Association for 1894 were elected as follows: President, William M. Butler, of New Bedford; Secretary, Henry S. Milton, of Waltham; Executive Committee, William M. Butler, Henry S. Milton, John F. Fitzgerald, of Boston, Edwin F. Lyford, of Springfield, and Lewis A. Austin, of Taunton.

It is commonly supposed that the Senate is made up of older men than the House. But it appears that the average age of the senators is 45 years, and of the representatives 44 years. The average weight of the senators is 174 pounds, and of the representatives 170. The Senate weighed a total of 6,900 pounds as against 7,021 for that of 1893; and its total of years was 1,805 as against 1,770 for 1893. The total age of the House was 10,587 years against 10,840 for 1893; and its total weight was 40,730 pounds against 40,278 for 1893. The president and the left half of the Senate averaged 44½ years and 172½ pounds against 45½ years and 175 $\frac{3}{4}$  pounds for the other half. The first half of the House, alphabetically, averaged 44 $\frac{1}{3}$  years and 168 $\frac{1}{4}$  pounds against 43 $\frac{2}{8}$  years and 171 pounds for the last half.

Of the forty senators, 32 were married, and only 25 smoked. Of the 240 representatives, 180 were married, and 104 did not smoke. The smokers were just as many as in the House of 1893; but five more members were married then.

The special feature of the "mock session" was the capital poem by Representative Grover, touching upon incidents of the session and the peculiarities of members.

Probably the most amendments ever seen offered to one bill were proposed in the Senate to the "Meigs" elevated railroad bill.

Gov. Greenhalge signed 546 acts, 111 resolves, allowed 4 acts to become law without his signature, and vetoed 4 bills.

Prorogation was reached at 7.15 P.M. Monday, July 2.

Capt. Meigs was given the quill with which the "Meigs" bill was signed, and Senator Sawyer received that with which Gov. Greenhalge put his name to the "Boynton Bicycle" bill.

The House presented Speaker Meyer with a token of its esteem in the shape of two silver jardinières and a silver vase, besides very expressive resolutions. The latter were presented by Mr. Dowd, and supported by Messrs. Wellman, St. John, Porter of Attleboro, Abbott, Weston, Myers, Hayes of Lowell, and Irwin. The more substantial offering was made by Mr. Farley of Lowell, in behalf of his fellow-members. Resolutions to Clerk McLaughlin were accompanied by a Morris chair as an expression of good will. In the Senate a resolution of thanks to President Butler was offered by Senator Kittredge, and supported by Senator Buckley. A magnificent hall clock was a timely and substantial token of the esteem of the members for their youthful president. An elegant Afghanistan rug was presented to Clerk Coolidge, and a handsome arm-chair to Door-keeper Remington. Senators Leary, Durant, and Blanchard spoke to the resolutions to the clerk. President Butler stated in his response that the amount of business before the Legislature of 1894 was 28 per cent. more than in 1893.

The Legislature of 1894 was called upon to face a novel and remarkable problem. After several meetings on Boston Common, generally held on Tuesday, a large number of the unemployed of Boston were finally led to the State House, on the afternoon of February 20, by Morrison I. Swift. They were addressed from the capitol steps by Gov. Greenhalge, who had previously promised to do so. Then a petition was sent in to the House, which was presented by Mr. Mellen, asking for legislation in their behalf. This was accompanied by various resolutions, etc., which can be found in the House Journal of that date. The petition was received in both branches, and the following special committee appointed on it: Senators Lyford, Cronan, and Gray; and Representatives Wellman, Mellen, Jones, Irwin, Phelps, Ewing, and Atwood. The latter was chosen secretary. Several hearings were given, the petitioners were given ample time to state their case as fully as they desired, and then the committee reported for a commission to examine the subject and report to the next Legislature, and for an appropriation to enable more extensive work on the Metropolitan Park system so as to furnish more work for the unemployed. Both these measures were passed.

The Republicans went on record in both branches at various times, by a solid party vote against the solid Democratic vote, in favor of resolutions sustaining the principle of a protective tariff, especially as regards cotton manufactures and tobacco.

Messrs. Roe, of Worcester, and Mahan, of Natick, made the interesting discovery during the session that they were both confined in the rebel military prison of Danville, Va., for six months at the same time.

On Thursday, May 10, Hon. Frederick Douglass, of Washington, was present a few moments in each branch. He was presented to the members during a brief recess, and then addressed a few words to them, expressing, among other sentiments, his appreciation of the treatment he was then receiving, compared with what he had once experienced in Boston.

On April 30, the bill for a new State House was rejected by a vote of 127 to 53 and 20 pairs. Col. Fred Grant, son of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, ex-president of the United States, was present in each branch, and was presented to the members, after which he briefly addressed them, alluding to the fact that it was his father's birthday.

THE FOUNDING OF "PATRIOTS' DAY."

The Legislature of 1894 will be remembered for its abolition of "Fast Day," and its founding of "Patriots' Day." The proclamation of Gov. Greenhalge in relation to the latter is as follows:—

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

By His Excellency, FREDERIC T. GREENHALGE, Governor:

A PROCLAMATION.

By an Act of the Legislature, duly approved, the NINETEENTH DAY OF APRIL has been made a LEGAL HOLIDAY.

This is a day rich with historical and significant events which are precious in the eyes of patriots. It may well be called Patriots' Day. On this day in 1775, at Lexington and Concord, was begun the great War of the Revolution; on this day in 1783, just eight years afterward, the cessation of the war and the triumph of independence was formally proclaimed; and on this day in 1861 the first blood was shed in the war for the Union. Thus the day is grand with the memories of the mighty struggles which in one instance brought Liberty and in the other Union to the country. It is fitting, therefore, that the day should be celebrated as the anniversary of the birth of Liberty and Union.

Let the day be dedicated, then, to solemn, religious, and patriotic services, which may adequately express our deep sense of the trials and tribulations of the patriots of the earlier and of the latter days, and especially our gratitude to Almighty God, who crowned the heroic struggles of the founders and preservers of our country with victory and peace.

Given at the Executive Chamber, in Boston, this eleventh day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and eighteenth.

FREDERIC T. GREENHALGE.

By His Excellency the Governor,

WILLIAM M. OLIN,

Secretary of the Commonwealth.
